

Jan Servaes
Editor

Learning from Communicators in Social Change

Rethinking the Power of Development

 Springer

Contents

Introduction: The Murky Beginnings and Confusing Guidelines of a “Do-Good” Ideology . . . . .	1
Jan Servaes
Is It Government Communication or People Communication? . . . . .	13
Nora C. Quebral
A Personal Account of the History of Devcom: Beginning in 1964 . . . . .	23
John A. Lent
Communication for Development: Looking Backward, Looking Forward . . . . .	33
Emile G. McAnany
The Beginnings of DSC in FAO . . . . .	49
Silvia Balit
Communication Planning Recalled . . . . .	59
Alan Hancock
A Personal Encounter: Some Reflections on Communication for Development and Social Change . . . . .	71
Jan Servaes
Understanding the Promise of Communication for Social Change: Challenges in Transforming India Towards a Sustainable Future . . . . .	83
Kiran Prasad
Participatory Environmental Communication: Pedagogy and Practice . . . . .	101
Usha S. Harris
The Development of Documentary in Post-1990s China . . . . .	119
Zhou Bing

Sure Ducks: What I Learned in the Village .....	125
Timothy Kennedy
Growing up with and Within an Emerging Field: A Professional- Personal Development Story .....	145
Birgitte Jallof
Power/Poder: Working Class Organizing, Confronting Race and Ethnic Hatred .....	173
James Lescault
Rethinking Social Change and Development Communication in Africa .....	191
Charles Okigbo
Twenty Years of Communicating Social Change: A Southern African Perspective on Teaching, Researching and Doing .....	211
Ruth Teer-Tomaselli, Lauren Dyll, and Eliza Govender
RNTC—Latin America: Lessons Learnt During Three Decades of Educational Communication for Development .....	235
Daniel Prieto Castillo, Amable Rosario, and Carlos Eduardo Cortés
Conclusion: Some Suggestions for Communication for Development and Social Change .....	251
Jan Servaes
Index .....	267