

CORE TEXT SERIES

---

Intellectual Property Law

Fourth Edition

JENNIFER DAVIS

Series Editor

NICOLA PADFIELD

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Table of statutes	xxiv
Table of secondary legislation	xxviii
Table of international instruments	xxix
Table of cases	xxxii

1	An introduction to intellectual property	1
	Defining intellectual property	1
	The abstract nature of intellectual property	2
	The boundaries of intellectual property	2
	The development of intellectual property law	3
	The justification for intellectual property rights	4
	The ‘Law and Economics’ justification	4
	Intellectual property and competition	5
	The ‘labour’ justification for intellectual property	6
	The international dimension to intellectual property rights	8
	The World Intellectual Property Organization	8
	WTO and TRIPS	9
	Remedies for the infringement of intellectual property rights	11
	Criminal actions	12
	Civil actions	12
	An account of profits	13
	Damages	14
	Pre-trial relief	15
	SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	20
	FURTHER READING	20
2	Copyright	21
	Copyright: its origins and development	21
	The history of copyright protection	22
	The justification for copyright	23
	The Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988	24

Copyright works (CDPA 1988, s 1)	24
Literary works (CDPA 1988, s 3(1))	25
De minimis	26
Dramatic works (CDPA 1988, s 3(1))	26
Musical works (CDPA 1988, s 3(1))	27
Fixation and originality	28
The idea–expression dichotomy	28
Fixation	28
Originality: the UK approach	29
Originality after Infopaq	29
Compilations	30
Adaptations, translations and arrangements	31
Artistic works (CDPA 1988, s 4)	32
Works of architecture (CDPA 1988, s 4(1)(b))	33
Artistic craftsmanship (CDPA 1988, s 4(1)(c))	34
Artistic works and originality	34
The idea–expression dichotomy in artistic works	35
Artistic works compared	36
Secondary works	37
Sound recordings (CDPA 1988, s 5A(1)(a) and (b))	37
Film (CDPA 1988, s 5B(1))	38
Broadcasts (CDPA 1988, s 6)	38
Published editions (CDPA 1988, s 8)	39
Authorship and ownership	39
Authorship of primary works	39
Authorship in secondary works	40
Joint authors	40
Ownership (CDPA 1988, s 11)	42
Works created by employees (CDPA 1988, s 11(2))	42
Commissioned works	42
Qualifying works (CDPA 1988, ss 153–156)	43
Duration of copyright in primary works (CDPA 1988, s 12)	44
Duration of copyright in secondary works (CDPA 1988, s 13A and ss 13B–15)	44
Infringement	45
Primary infringement	45
Restricted acts	45
The elements of primary infringement	46
The causal connection	46
Indirect copying	46

---

Subconscious copying	47
A substantial part	47
Originality and infringement	48
Compilations	48
The idea/expression dichotomy and infringement	49
Non-literal copying	49
A common source	51
Artistic works and infringement	52
Authorisation	53
The restricted acts applied to copyright works (CDPA 1988, ss 16–21)	55
Copying	55
Issuing copies to the public and the rental right (CDPA 1988, s 18)	56
Performing, playing or showing a work in public (CDPA 1988, s 19)	56
Public performances	57
Communication right (CDPA 1988, s 20)	57
Making an adaptation (CDPA 1988, s 21)	58
What is proof of copying?	58
Secondary infringement (CDPA 1988, ss 22–27)	59
Permitted acts	59
Making temporary copies (CDPA 1988, s 28A)	60
Fair dealing	60
Fair dealing and unpublished works	61
Research and private study (CDPA 1988, s 29)	62
Criticism and review (CDPA 1988, s 30)	62
News reporting (CDPA 1988, s 30(2))	63
Public interest	65
The legal basis for a public interest defence	65
The necessary circumstances for a public interest defence	65
The Human Rights Act 1998 and freedom of expression	66
The conflict between freedom of expression and copyright	66
Applying the law in Ashdown	67
Moral rights (CDPA 1988, ss 77–89)	68
The weakness of moral rights	69
Dealing with copyright (CDPA 1988, ss 90–93)	69
Remedies	70
Civil remedies	70
Criminal offences (CDPA 1988, ss 107–111)	71
Which jurisdiction?	72

Copyright and the new technology	72
The protection of software	73
Software and the CDPA 1988	73
Infringement	74
Literal copying	75
Non-literal copying	75
The idea-expression dichotomy and software	76
Reverse engineering (CDPA 1988, s 50B), and observing, studying and testing software (s 50BA)	77
Software, copyright and the internet	78
The internet and the protection of the content layer	79
The Information Society Directive	79
Circumvention of technological measures (CDPA 1988, s 296ZA)	80
Offences in relation to circumvention	80
Devices designed to circumvent technological measures (CDPA 1988, s 296ZD)	81
Fair dealing and anti-circumvention measures	81
Electronic rights management (CDPA 1988, s 296ZG)	82
Protection on the physical layer: internet service providers (ISPs)	82
The future	83
Databases	85
Databases and infringement	85
A substantial part and database infringement	86
The judgment in BHB	86
Exceptions to the database right	87
Copyright in its international context	88
Parallel imports and the EU (CDPA 1988, s 27)	89
The EU and competition law	89
Article 101 TFEU	89
Article 102 TFEU	90
SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	91
FURTHER READING	92
3 Confidential information	94
The law of confidence: an introduction	94
The nature of the law of confidence	95
The equitable basis	95
Confidential information as property	96
Contractual obligations	96

---

The elements of a breach of confidence action	97
Element 1: the confidential information	97
Material in the public domain	98
Dissemination by the confider	99
Accessibility through analysis or reverse engineering	99
The form of confidential information	100
The springboard doctrine 1: when does it arise?	101
The springboard doctrine 2: when does it expire?	101
Vestergaard : the judgment	102
Commercial secrets	103
Trade secrets	103
Personal secrets	104
Immoral material	104
Government secrets	104
Professional confidences	105
Element 2: the confidential obligation	106
The origins of the duty of confidence	106
Limited purpose test	107
An objective test	108
‘Anonymised’ information	108
Confidential information given to third parties	109
Confidential information obtained improperly	111
Other relationships of confidence: employees and confidential information	112
Duties during employment	113
The Faccenda Chicken case	114
The Faccenda definition of ‘trade secrets’	115
Confidential information versus ‘know-how’	116
The Faccenda test for trade secrets applied	117
Post-employment obligations	118
Post-employment restrictive covenants	118
Faccenda criticised	119
Faccenda approved	119
Element 3: unauthorised use or disclosure	121
Misuse and unauthorised disclosure compared	121
The defendant’s state of mind	122
The extent of misuse	123
Must there be detriment?	124

Defence 1: the public interest defence	124
The origins of the defence	125
The defence in contract and equity	125
The scope of the defence	126
The ‘Spycatcher’ case	127
The balancing exercise in ‘Spycatcher’	128
To whom should disclosure be made?	128
Defence 2: the confidential information is insufficiently identified	129
The Human Rights Act 1998, breach of confidence and invasion of privacy	129
Personal secrets before the Human Rights Act 1998	130
The absence of a right to privacy	131
Privacy and the tort of invasion of privacy post HRA 1998	132
Privacy, freedom of information and the public interest (1): A v B	133
Personal privacy and the public interest defence (2): Campbell v MGN	134
The invasion of privacy and the influence of the ECHR	137
The protection of privacy in the UK following Von Hannover Campbell and Von Hannover compared	139
Privacy and public spaces: Murray v Express Newspapers	140
Privacy, freedom of expression and contributing to a debate of general interest	141
Privacy and commercial secrets: Douglas v Hello	143
Commercial secrets licensed to third parties: Douglas v Hello	144
The Data Protection Act 1998	145
Remedies	146
Interim injunctions	146
Injunctions	147
An injunction ‘against the world’	147
Anonymised orders and super-injunctions	148
The future of art 8 actions	149
Damages/an account of profits	150
SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	151
FURTHER READING	152
4 Passing off	153
Passing off: development and definitions	153
The origins of passing off	153

---

The development of passing off	154
The extended form of passing off	155
Lord Diplock's definition in Advocaat	155
The classic definition of passing off: the 'Jif Lemon' case	156
Passing off and unfair competition	156
Other remedies against unfair competition	158
The relationship with trade marks	158
The first element of passing off: goodwill	159
The meaning of goodwill	159
The difference between goodwill and reputation	160
Dealings with goodwill	161
The goodwill must be in England	161
What constitutes goodwill	161
Goodwill in services	162
Who owns goodwill	163
Goodwill can be local	163
Shared goodwill	164
Shared goodwill and the extended form of passing off	164
What is not protected by passing off	166
The origin of goodwill	166
Assessing goodwill	167
The end of goodwill	167
Who is a 'trader'?	167
The second element of passing off: misrepresentation	168
The nature of a material misrepresentation	168
The difference between confusion and misrepresentation	169
Passing off and 'initial interest confusion'	169
An actionable misrepresentation	170
How many customers must be deceived?	171
Evidence of deception	171
Passing off and fraud	173
Instruments of fraud	173
Types of actionable misrepresentation	174
The defendant's goods are the claimant's	174
Misrepresentation as to quality	175
Misrepresentation as to origin	175
The extended form of passing off	175
A business relationship	176
A licensing relationship	178
Reverse (or inverse) passing off	178

Common field of activity/competition	179
The definition of distinctiveness	180
Distinctiveness in trade marks and passing off	180
Descriptive words	181
Descriptive marks and secondary meanings	181
Generic names in passing off	182
Generic names and extended passing off	183
Get-up	183
Get-up common to the trade	184
Get-up and the shape of the goods	184
The name of the trader need not be known	185
Passing off and brand 'lookalikes'	185
The third element of passing off: damage	186
Damages for lost business	187
Damage by association	187
Damages for loss of distinctiveness	188
Defences to passing off	189
Use of own name	189
Honest concurrent use	190
Delay	190
Character and personality merchandising	190
Character/personality merchandising and passing off: the basis for protection	191
Character/personality merchandising: the common field of activity	192
Character/personality merchandising: the move away from a common field	192
Character/personality merchandising: the 'Ninja Turtle' case	193
Beyond the 'Ninja Turtles'	194
False endorsement	195
Damages and 'false endorsement'	196
Remedies	197
Actions for passing off and trade mark infringement	197
SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	197
FURTHER READING	198
5 Trade marks	199
Introduction: the law and function of trade marks	199
The function of trade mark protection: (i) an indicator of origin	200

The function of trade mark protection: (ii) brand attractiveness	201
Trade marks and the public interest	202
Interpreting the Trade Marks Act 1994	203
Registration	203
Collective and certification marks	204
International protection	204
The Community Trade Mark	205
The definition of a trade mark	205
Any sign	206
Capable of being represented graphically	206
Capable of distinguishing the goods and services of one undertaking from those of other undertakings	207
Absolute grounds for refusal of registration	208
Signs which do not satisfy s 1(1) TMA	208
Marks which must satisfy the proviso	209
Marks devoid of distinctive character	210
Descriptive marks	211
The limits of descriptiveness	212
Generic or customary marks	213
The relationship between s 3(1)(a) and s 3(1)(b)–(d)	213
Distinctiveness acquired through use	213
Marks against the public interest	214
Prohibited shapes	214
Contrary to public policy	216
Other prohibited marks	216
Registrations in bad faith	216
Relative grounds for refusal of registration	217
Grounds for conflict	218
Identical marks on identical goods and services	218
Identical marks on similar goods and services and similar marks on similar or identical goods and services	218
The proviso: (i) the early years	219
The proviso: (ii) Sabel and beyond	220
The global approach and assessing the similarity of marks	220
The global approach and assessing the level of distinctiveness	222
The global approach and assessing the similarity of the goods (or services)	222
The global approach and the likelihood of confusion	223
The global approach applied	223

Marks with a reputation on similar or dissimilar goods	224
What is a reputation?	225
Applying the proviso	225
Applying the proviso: the case law	226
Detrimental to the distinctive character and repute of the mark	226
Takes unfair advantage	227
L'Oreal v Bellure : the judgment	228
L'Oreal v Bellure : the controversy	229
Without due cause	230
Conflicts with earlier rights	230
Consent/honest concurrent use	230
Infringement	231
The grounds for infringement	231
What constitutes infringing use?	232
Non-trade mark use	232
Non-trade mark use and infringement	233
Infringing use after Arsenal v Reed	234
The advertising functions of a trade mark and trade mark use	234
Finding infringement	235
Identical marks on identical goods	235
Identical or similar marks on identical or similar goods	235
Marks with a reputation on similar or dissimilar goods	236
Well-known marks	236
Limits on the protection afforded by registration	237
Defence 1: overlapping registrations	237
Defence 2: use of own name	237
Defence 3: descriptive use	238
Defence 4: intended purpose	239
Defence 5: local signs	240
Comparative advertising	240
Comparative advertising and the Comparative Advertising Directive	240
Trade mark infringement and the internet	241
Trade marks and internet domain names	242
Trade marks and search engines I: Louis Vuitton v Google	242
Louis Vuitton v Google : the judgment	243
Trade marks and search engines II: Interflora v Marks &amp; Spencer	243
Interflora v Marks &amp; Spencer : the judgment	244
Trade marks and auction sites: L'Oreal v eBay	245
L'Oreal v eBay : the judgment	246
Google and eBay: liability under the E-Commerce Directive	246

---

Losing the mark	247
Revocation	247
Non-use	247
Use of a different mark	248
Non-use on the goods for which the mark is registered	248
Genuine use	248
Proper reasons	249
Generic marks	249
Deceptive marks	250
Consequences of revocation	250
Invalidity	251
Breach of absolute grounds for refusal of registration	251
Applying s 47(1)(art 3(1))	251
An earlier registered mark	252
Bad faith	252
Consequences of a finding of invalidity	252
Consent and acquiescence	253
Licensing and assignments	253
Assignments	253
Licensing	254
Rights of licensees	254
Character merchandising	254
Elvis Presley and character merchandising	255
Remedies	256
Groundless threats	257
Criminal sanctions	257
Trade marks and the EU	258
Exhaustion of rights in the EEA	258
Disguised restriction of trade	259
Changing the 'condition' of the goods	260
The test of necessity	260
The scope of the 'necessity test'	261
Changing the 'mental' condition of the goods	262
Parallel imports from outside the EEA	263
The decision in Silhouette	264
The debate	265
The question of consent	265
Consent within the EEA	266

Resale on the internet and art 7	267
Trade mark protection and competition law in the EU	267
The relationship between the TM Directive, arts 34, 36 and art 101 TFEU	268
SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	269
FURTHER READING	270
6 Patents	271
Introduction: Patents Act 1977 and patent law	271
Development and justifications	272
Routes to international protection	273
UK patent law and the EPC	274
Obtaining a patent	275
Employee inventions	275
Compensation for employee-inventors	275
Entitlement 1: Markem v Zipher	276
Entitlement 2: Markem v Zipher overruled	276
The application	277
The priority date (PA 1977, s 5)	278
Preliminary examination and publication	278
Substantive examination and acceptance	279
Length of grant	279
Patentability	279
A patentable invention	280
Patentable inventions 1: the excluded categories	280
Patentable inventions 2: novelty (PA 1977, s 2)	289
Patentable inventions 3: the inventive step (PA 1977, s 3)	295
Patentable inventions 4: industrial applicability (PA 1977, s 4)	307
Sufficiency (Patents Act 1977, s 14)	310
The need for an enabling disclosure (PA 1977, s 14(3))	310
Assessing sufficiency	311
The claim/specification balance	312
Insufficiency post- Biogen	312
Infringement	313
The 'fence post' approach	313
The purposive approach	314
The Improver test	315

Applying the Improver test	315
Statutory provisions	316
The doctrine of equivalents	316
Kirin-Amgen and infringement	317
The Kirin-Amgen approach to infringement summarised	319
Infringing acts	319
Defences (PA 1977, s 60(5)(a)–(f))	320
Repair	321
Losing the patent: revocation (Patents Act 1977, s 72)	322
Revocation proceedings	323
Patents as property	324
Assignments	324
Exclusive licences	324
Void licence provisions	324
Licences of right (PA 1977, s 46)	325
Compulsory licences	325
Crown use (PA 1977, ss 55–59)	326
Enforcing a patent	326
The Patents Court	326
The Patents County Court	327
Remedies	327
Innocent infringement	327
Groundless threats (PA 1977, s 70)	327
Patents and the EU	328
The exhaustion of rights	328
The importance of consent	329
Patent rights and competition law in the EU	330
The ‘Euro’ defence	331
Patents and EU block exemptions	332
Patents and the rest of the world	332
SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	334
FURTHER READING	334
7 Industrial design	336
Development and context	336
British Leyland criticised	337

---

The 1988 reforms	338
The UK design regime and the EU Directive	338
The Community registered and unregistered design	338
The relationship between design right and copyright 1: CDPA 1988, s 51	339
Section 51 as a defence	341
The relationship between design right and copyright 2: CDPA 1988, s 52	342
Design right	342
The definition of a design	343
The relationship between the design and the ‘article’	343
Originality and design right	344
The relationship between originality and the commonplace in design	345
When is a design commonplace?	345
The Farmers Build case	346
The design field in question	346
Exclusions from protection (CDPA 1988, s 213(3))	347
The ‘must fit’ exclusion (CDPA 1988, s 213(3)(b)(i))	348
The ‘must match’ exclusion (CDPA 1988, s 213(3)(b)(ii))	349
The limits of the ‘must fit’ and ‘must match’ exclusions	350
Creation of design right	350
Ownership of design rights	350
Duration of design right	351
Infringement	351
Primary infringement (CDPA 1988, s 226)	351
Proving infringement	352
Secondary infringement (CDPA 1988, ss 227–228)	353
UK design right and community design right compared	353
Registered designs	354
Contrast with other rights	354
Registrable designs (RDA 1949, s 1(2))	355
The definition of a ‘product’ (RDA 1949, s 1(3))	355
Requirements for registration (RDA 1949, s 1B)	355
The informed user and design freedom	357
Prior art and registered designs	358
Component parts (RDA 1949, s 1B(8))	359
Grounds for refusal of registration (RDA 1949, s 1A)	360
Length of protection (RDA 1949, s 8)	361

Ownership of a registered design (RDA 1949, s 2)	361
Applications (RDA 1949, ss 3 and 3A)	361
Rights given by registration (RDA 1949, s 7)	362
Infringement and exceptions to infringement (RDA 1949, s 7A)	362
The 'spare parts' exception (RDA 1949, s 7A(5))	363
Invalidity (RDA 1949, s 11ZA)	364
Industrial designs and the rest of the world	364
SELF-TEST QUESTIONS	364
FURTHER READING	365
Index	367