Second Language Learning and Language Teaching

Fourth Edition

Vivian Cook

HODDER EDUCATION
AN HACHETTE UK COMPANY

Contents

Acknowledgements ix

Note to teachers x

1 Background to second language acquisition research and language teaching 1

1.1 The scope of this book 1

1.2 Common assumptions of language teaching 2

1.3 What is second language acquisition research? 6

1.4 What a teacher can expect from SLA research 8

1.5 Some background ideas of SLA research 11

Discussion topics 16

Further reading 17

Glosses on language teaching methods 17

2 Learning and teaching different types of grammar 18

2.1 What is grammar? 18

2.2 Structure words, morphemes and sequences of acquisition 23

2.3 The processability model 28

2.4 Principles and parameters grammar 33

2.5 L2 learning of grammar and L2 teaching 36

2.6 The role of explicit grammar in language teaching 39

Discussion topics 43

Further reading 44

Some grammatical terms 44

3 Learning and teaching vocabulary 46

3.1 Word frequency 46

3.2 Knowledge of words 49

3.3 One word-store or two in the L2 user's mind? 52

3.4 Types of meaning 53

3.5 Strategies for understanding and learning vocabulary 57

3.6 Vocabulary and teaching 62

		Discussion topics	65
		Further reading	65
		Answers to Box 3.1	65
4	Acquiring and teaching pronunciation		67
	4.1	Phonemes and second language acquisition	69
	4.2	Learning syllable structure	73
	4.3	General ideas about phonology learning	75
	4.4	Choosing a model for teaching pronunciation	78
	4.5	Learning and teaching pronunciation	80
	4.6	Learning and teaching intonation	82
		Discussion topics	85
		Further reading	86
5	Acquiring and teaching a new writing system		87
	5.1	Writing systems	87
	5.2	Spelling	90
	5.3	Punctuation	95
	5.4	The writing system and language teaching	98
		Discussion topics	103
		Further reading	103
		Answer to Box 5.1	103
		Answer to Box 5.8	103
6	Strategies for communicating and learning		105
	6.1	Communication strategies	106
	6.2	Learning strategies: how do learners vary in their approaches to L2 learning?	113
		Discussion topics	119
		Further reading	120
		Answers to Box 6.1	120
7	Listening and reading processes		121
	7.1	Meaning and reading	121
	7.2	Listening processes	125
		Discussion topics	133
		Further reading	134

8 Individual differences in L2 users and L2 learners 135
8.1 Motivation for L2 learning 136
8.2 Attitudes 140
8.3 Aptitude: are some people better at learning a second language than others? 144
8.4 Age: are young L2 learners better than old learners? 147
8.5 Are other personality traits important to L2 learning? 150
Discussion topics 153
Further reading 154

9 Classroom interaction and Conversation Analysis 155
9.1 Language and interaction inside the classroom 155
9.2 Language input and language learning 161
9.3 Describing conversation 165
Discussion topics 168
Further reading 169

10 The L2 user and the native speaker 170
10.1 The L2 user versus the native speaker in language teaching 170
10.2 Codeswitching by second language users 174
10.3 Using the first language in the classroom 180
10.4 Are native speakers better language teachers? 185
10.5 International languages: English as lingua franca (ELF) 189
Discussion topics 193
Further reading 193

11 The goals of language teaching 194
11.1 The different roles of second languages in people's lives 195
11.2 Language and groups of speakers 201
11.3 The goals of language teaching 205
Discussion topics 212
Further reading 213

12 General models of L2 learning 214
12.1 Universal Grammar 214
12.2 Processing models 218
12.3 The socio-educational model 222
12.4 The interaction approach 224

12.5 Sociocultural SLA theory 228
12.6 Multi-competence – the L2 user approach 231
12.7 General issues 233
Discussion topics 234
Further reading 234

13 Second language learning and language teaching styles 235
13.1 The academic style 237
13.2 The audio-lingual style 242
13.3 The communicative style 247
13.4 The task-based learning style 257
13.5 The mainstream EFL style 263
13.6 Other styles 266
13.7 Conclusions 270
Discussion topics 271
Further reading 272

List of coursebooks mentioned 273
References 277
Index 295

Acknowledgements

The motto of this book, as before, comes from Otto Jespersen (1904): 'The really important thing is less the destruction of bad old methods than a positive indication of the new ways to be followed if we are to have thoroughly efficient teaching in modern languages.' The new edition has benefited from the feedback of students, colleagues and readers. Without the musical influence of EST, Polar Bear and Miles Davis, it would never have been finished.

Vivian Cook
January 2008