

e-Retailing

Charles Dennis,
Tino Fenech and
Bill Merrilees

Contents

List of illustrations	viii
List of contributors	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	xiv
1 The world of e-retailing	1
2 e-Retailing in practice	26
3 Integration of e-retailing into an organization	55
4 Understanding and communicating with the e-consumer	76
5 Information search on the Web	112
6 e-Store design: navigability, interactivity and web atmospherics	129
7 e-Service	149
8 Branding on the Web	170
9 e-Malls	186
10 e-Retailing models	202
11 m-Shopping	226
12 Multi-channel success and the future of e-retailing	244
Answers	268
Glossary	278
Index	285

Illustrations

FIGURES

1.1	The growth of online shopping	15
1.2	e-Retailing as percentage of UK shopping	16
1.3	What e-shoppers buy	16
2.1	Exemplar strategic positioning of books e-retailers	30
2.2	Paid online spending growth rates for the US for 2003	34
2.3	Online systems are using computing facilities to substitute for the physical trail of merchandise	43
2.4	Based on a series of online questions, the virtual model approximates the image of the Web shopper	44
2.5	Relative quantities of purchases from Amazon	46
2.6	Search result options to search for similar titles	48
2.7	Ansoff matrix	50
3.1	e-Commerce digitization	60
3.2	Strategic options for retailers	61
3.3	The Online Retail Relationship Matrix	65
3.4	The Purchaser–Purveyor Loyalty Matrix	67
4.1	Why Internet-connected consumers do not e-shop	83
4.2	Comparing ratings — Internet vs. West London shopping centre	83
6.1	Simplified representation of a grid layout e-retail store	138
6.2	Simplified representation of a free-flow layout e-retail store	139
6.3	Simplified representation of a freegrid layout e-retail store	139
6.4	An integrated framework for e-store design	142
7.1	Web ancillary services that influence e-retail trust	155
8.1	An integrated framework for e-branding	177
8.2	Snake position maps for three e-retail booksellers	184
10.1	The influence of the five retail participant groups within the business environment	203
10.2	The electronic shopping 'ES' test	216

10.3	Product characteristics and the five senses	217
10.4	Scoring product characteristics	217
10.5	Familiarity/confidence and electronic shopping	218
10.6	Scoring familiarity and confidence	219
10.7	Consumer categories and electronic shopping potential	220
10.8	Scoring customer attributes	221
11.1	Evolution of retailing	227
11.2	Internet hosts, growth rates	228
11.3	Time spent on the Internet	229
11.4	Visitors to a website in each category compared to a baseline of June 2002	229
11.5	Broadband adoption by Internet users	230
11.6	Broadband penetration	230
11.7	Wireless networking hardware	232
11.8	Phones are already under development	232
11.9	What m-shoppers buy (mobile phone Internet and PDA)	235
11.10	Many new phones are Wi-Fi enabled	239
12.1	Future customers will identify themselves to the retailer with a loyalty card	252
12.2	The new shopping trolley	253
12.3	A sample of a bar code	254
12.4	Sample alternative broadcasts from RFID tags	254
12.5	RFID tag	255
12.6	Sample alternative broadcasts from RFID tags	256
12.7	Interactive kiosks come in a variety of styles	259
12.8	Audio-visual shopping trolley with EPSA technology	260
12.9	Assessment of the technology usage in the Extra Future Store	263
12.10	Positive evaluation of the benefits of technology in the Extra Future Store	264

TABLES

2.1	Price test results for CDs	32
2.2	Evaluation of the e-shopping potential of CDs using the ES test	33
4.1	The principal benefits expected by consumers from e-shopping	81
4.2	The principal benefits expected by business customers from e-purchasing	82
7.1	Positive critical incidents affecting e-service	158
7.2	Negative critical incidents affecting e-service	159
7.3	Logit regression differentiating high-service and low-service sites	160
7.4	OLS regression determining overall site e-service rating	162
9.1	Determinants of brand attitudes in two Australian e-malls	194

ILLUSTRATIONS

9.2	Determinants of e-trust in two Australian e-malls	195
9.3	Determinants of interactivity in two Australian e-malls	196
10.1	Assessment of retail channels in meeting a retailer's objectives for customers	209
10.2	Assessment of retail channels in meeting a retailer's objectives for staff	211
10.3	Assessment of retail channels in meeting a retailer's objectives for shareholders	212
10.4	Assessment of retail channels in meeting a retailer's objectives for suppliers, partners and dealers	213
10.5	Assessment of retail channels in meeting a retailer's objectives for the community	214
10.6	Examples of electronic shopping (ES) tests	221