

FOUNDATIONS OF GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SCIENCE

Edited by

Matt Duckham, Michael F. Goodchild and
Michael F. Worboys

Taylor & Francis
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK

CONTENTS

Contributors		vii
Introduction		1
Chapter 1	Geographic Information Science: Defining the Field David M.Mark	3
Chapter 2	The Nature and Value of Geographic Information Michael F.Goodchild	19
Chapter 3	Communicating Geographic Information in Context Michael F.Worboys	33
Chapter 4	Pragmatic Information Content—How to Measure the Information in a Route Description Andrew U.Frank	47
Chapter 5	Representational Commitment in Maps Christopher Habel	69
Chapter 6	Granularity in Change over Time John G.Stell	95
Chapter 7	A Theory of Granular Partitions Thomas Bittner and Barry Smith	117
Chapter 8	On the Ontological Status of Geographical Boundaries Antony Galton	151
Chapter 9	Regions in Geography: Process and Content Daniel R.Montello	173
Chapter 10	Neighborhoods and Landmarks Stephen C.Hirtle	191

Chapter 11	Geographical Terminology Servers —Closing the Semantic Divide	205
	Christopher B.Jones, Harith Alani and Douglas Tudhope
Chapter 12	Placing Cultural Events and Documents in Space and Time	223
	Ray R.Larson
Chapter 13	Geographic Activity Models	241
	Sabine Timpf	