

FALL OF PR
AND RISE OF ADVERTISING

Stefan Engeseth

Contents

Foreword by Al Ries	xii
My letter to Al Ries:	xii
Author's preface	xiii
Introduction	19
When the world changes, so does our world view	20
Why your brain doesn't want to think	22
Building brands as buildings and towns	24
Moving business forward	25
Based on innovation and not the traditional case race	26
Tribes are brand building	30
From anti-advertising to a fishhook future	35
Advertising as a sponsor of life	36
Let the king and queen do more business	37
Show me the money by going beyond Web 3.0	38
Never run over a dog or a consumer	38
Consumer revolution changed the rules	40
Freedom of choice – a new dimension	41
This book is built on points not pages	42
Fakes don't build brands, fans or tribes	44
Real vs. fake	46
Funny, but true	46
<small>PART ONE</small>
The Fall of PR	51
10 points that are speeding up the fall of PR	52
Greed killed PR's credibility	53
Parrots can only imitate brand building	54
Overkill PR for Thai Air	55
PR pimped BBC for the devil	55
PR is too slow for today's business world	56
PR agencies can't even spell the Internet	56
PR's porno reality	57
Why bad client results make money for PR agencies	57

Bank robbers, hangmen and PR people	57
PR is not all bad	57

PART TWO

The Rise of Advertising	61
10 Points that are speeding up the rise of advertising	62
Putting the Nobel Prize in your iPhone	68
Fun pays?	71
Step up to the plate	73
Doing business at the speed of tomorrow	76
The new trend is that trends are dead...	77
From anti-advertising to the rise of advertising with consumer power	79
It's about taking the opera out of advertising	80
Updating the conventional approach	80
My short version of doing business with advertising	81
Making sense in a world of tribes	84
Advertising as a no-brainer	88
“Culture stones” that last	92
How IKEA can survive the “Kamprad defect”	94
Building houses as advertising monuments	94
How can these kind of buildings become tribal homes?	95
The “fake factor” in facts	98
Easy to fake if the emperor is a nudist	98
Stealing cars with advertising	100
Connect for real	101
Advertising is worth zero if it isn't part of management and business goals	103
Pampers sponsor sex?	104
Beyond Web 3.0	106
From Google Earth to Google Global Travel	107
From the Wild West to Google Downtown	109
Google credit card	111

PART THREE

The Evolution of Advertising	113
Three scenarios with billions of dollars, consumers and huge survivor demand	116
From positioning in the mind to positioning in space	118
Moon Wine – a new brand, made on the moon	118
Up until now, half of all advertising has been thrown away	123
How to get 3.6 billion consumers to dance with your brand	124
Le Fuck Freud	126
Do you feel how the earth is swaying under your feet?	127
Pay-to-stay at Hilton prison?	132
H&M designed by Al Gore	134
Transparent clothing by Google, Nudie and Al Gore	136
A skull brand named Cheap Monday	137
Product + body = impact and consumer involvement	140
Hire fat people in health food stores	141
Make the consumption the commercial	142
Toys will be a part of kid's bodies in the future	143
iGore + Live Earth = Walk the talk to music	144
Taken or single?	145
Axbo – a wake-up call for technology	147

PART FOUR

Filling the Gap between Advertising and PR	149
The missing testicle	150
Good results are good motivation for change	150
Changing structures are gradually filling the gap	151
Filling the gap with tools and models	153
We need more chess players	155
Unique Selling Unique (USU)	157
USU case: tribe drives eBay to success	157
Less is amore	158
From bonding to “debriefing branding”	159
Balance tool for evolutionary steps forward	160
Face the facts to succeed	162
Don't fill the gap with fake	164

PART FIVE

The Future Looks Good	167
Shark bites are good motivation	168
To summarize, here are a few examples of how the market is changing	168
Why Michael Moore movies work as advertising for change	169
In a fake world, people are searching for something real	169

PART SIX

Postscripts	173
How advertising can become “man’s best friend”	174
Change management like a Lego box	175
The customers are getting smarter, but what about the companies?	175
Follow the money into the future	175
About the author	177
Reading list	178
Interviews and lectures	180
Online references	184
Linked words	188
Movies	192
Acknowledgements	193